MYSTERIES!

The Nervous System the Seat of Life and Mind. Recent Wonderful Discoveries.

No mystery has ever compared with that of human life. It has been the leading subject of professional research and study in all ages. But notwithstanding this fact, there is generally a lack of knowledge as to the seat of the nervous system. It is located in the upper part of the spinal cord, and near the base of the brain, and so sensitive is this part of the nervous system that even the prick of a needle will cause instant death.

Recent discoveries have demonstrated that all the organs of the body are under the control of the nerve centers, located in or near the base of the brain, and when these are deranged the organs which they supply with nerve fluid are also deranged. When it is remembered that a serious injury to the spinal cord will cause paralysis of the body below the injured point, because the nerve fluid is prevented by the injury from reaching the paralyzed portion, it will be understood how the derangement of the nervous system will cause the derangement of all the organs which they supply with nerve fluid.

Two-thirds of all diseases are due to the imperfect action of the nerve centers at the base of the brain, not from a derangement primarily existing in the organs themselves. The great mistake of physicians in treating these diseases is that they treat the organ rather than the nerve centers which are the cause of the trouble.

Dr. FRANKLIN MILES, the celebrated specialist, has profoundly studied this subject for over 20 years, and has made many important discoveries in connection with it, chief among them being the facts contained in the above statement, and that the ordinary methods of treatment are wrong. All headache, dizziness, dullness, confusion, pressure, blues, mania, melancholy, insanity, epilepsy, St. Vitus dance, etc., are nervous diseases no matter how caused. The wonderful success of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is due to the fact that it is based on the foregoing principle.

Dr. Miles' RESTORATIVE NERVINE is sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee, or sent direct by Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5, express prepaid. It contains neither opiates nor dangerous drugs.

For Sale by all Druggists.

WOMEN ON WHEELS.

They Are Likely Soon to Discard Skirts While on the Road.

Two of the leading firms of bicycle manufacturers in this country have recently expressed the opinion that within five years there will be no difference between the wheels used by men and women. In other words, they believe the day is not far off when all women devoted to wheeling will discard skirts on the road and wear what is now usually referred to as the "rational" or "reformed" dress. They say there is no reason why women who wear costumes designed to enhance the comfort, enjoyment and safety of bicycling should not have wheels equal in every respect to those the men ride. In other words, the sex of the rider will cut no figure in the manufacture of bicycles, and women will no longer have to put up with wheels whose model, specially designed for skirt wearers, is necessarily inferior to those made for men in strength, lightness and ease of propulsion.

The courier of this new era in bicycling seems to have arrived. A wheel is just beginning to appear in the streets of this city and Brooklyn that is intended for women, though it has the diamond frame heretofore seen only in the safeties made for men. In no respect does it differ from the finest, high grade and high priced roadsters used by the sterner sex except that the diameter of both wheels is from two to four inches smaller than that of the men's machines, and the frame is accordingly so much nearer the ground. The wheel is mounted by the stop or pedal mount in vogue among men riders and is of course intended only for those women who wear the "rational dress."

It is possible that not a few women patrons of the wheel will look askance at this innovation, but if they will take the trouble to compare it with their own wheels they are certain to agree that it has its advantages. Women are not physically so strong as men, and yet the wheels they ride weigh from five to eight pounds more than men's roadsters. This is a discrimination against the fair sex reaching the proportions of a grievance. If women are not to be allowed to enjoy the exhilarating and health giving bicycle on equal terms with the men, they have wronged that Miss Anthony has not included in her category. The new wheel, however, weighs only 28 pounds, which is two to five pounds less than most of the high grade men's roadsters of exactly the same strength of frame. This is the crowning advantage, and it is secured chiefly by doing away with the skirt guards which are the unsightly and not wholly protective feature of women's bicycles, and by saving the extra weight required for the unsightly and clumsy frames devised for riders wearing skirts.

Undoubtedly there are many women who, much as they enjoy bicycling, would rather give up their wheels than appear in costumes more comfortable and safer than those they are now wearing. Every one of them will say, however, that bicycling in its present phase places limitations upon their enjoyment of it that are not imposed upon their husbands and brothers. It is an interesting and an important question how to surmount the difficulties and make all men and women free and equal bicyclers.

We believe the solution of the problem will be found in a sensible bicycle costume for women, and we do not think that our countrywomen will be slower than their sisters in Europe to recognize the advantages of a bicycle dress reform and to dress accordingly. The young women who are perfectly certain that they would rather die than wear one of the modest and tasteful bicycle suits which are now seen by scores on our streets are likely, before they are married, to see them so commonly in remark. While ago the bicycle costume was a topic in the month of every resident of Paris. Today the hoodlums of that capital are so ungallant as to hoot at the exceptional woman who still insists on wheeling through the parks in ordinary street attire.

We predict that the new bicycle, or something like it, will soon be a recognized feature in the wheeling world. —New York Sun.

A New English Beauty.

It is a long time since there has been an out and out English beauty, and so the debut of the 18-year-old daughter of the Duke of St. Albans promises to be followed by no end of triumphs for that exquisitely pretty girl. Not since the Jersey Lily smote society, hip and thigh, in the early nineties, has such a sensation been made as Lady Moyra Beaulieu occasioned at the last drawing room presentation. American fair ones have had it much their own way in London for several years, but now loyal Britons are bowing down to one of their own blood, a true typical English rose, the daughter of a duke, and I fear American beauties, with all their loud millions, must sing small. Will the "stars and stripes" permit this state of things to continue?—Cor. Boston Herald.

Three Times Three.

Mrs. Clarence Beebe, president of the Young Woman's Christian association in New York city, gave the farewell address to the recent graduating class from its business schools. She told the graduates that there were three s's, three p's and three f's by which their lives should be governed—self control, self respect and self possession; patriotism, purity and prayer; faithfulness, frankness and flexibility.

$100,000 on Her Life.

A Boston dispatch states that a life insurance company has just issued a policy of $100,000 upon the life of a woman. This is the first time a policy for this amount has been issued upon a woman's life. The lady is Mrs. Charles E. Longley of Pawtucket, wife of Charles E. Longley, president of the J. B. Barnaby company of Providence and the mother of several children.

AN OUTFIT FOR TRAVELING.

The traveling dress on the left is of snuff brown cloth, triple skirt, tailor finished. The waist is of striped silk. The cape is of the cloth. The central figure is of slate cheviot with stitching. The waist is of the same and the pretty blazer coat is lined with tan silk. The little girl's dress is of diagonal wool in two shades. The waist is of red and white plaid flannel.

In No Danger Yet.

Father—I don't like that young man who comes to see Nellie.
Mother—It may be nothing serious.
"He has been sending her flowers and bringing her confectionery for weeks."
"Others have done that and dropped off of their own accord."
"But last night he brought her some chewing gum."

"Dear me! That looks serious. He loves her. Are you sure of it?"
"I saw him give her the gum, and she put it in her mouth."
"Oh, that's all right. If she sat there and chewed gum, she doesn't love him." —Good News.

No "Conscience" in Auburn.

Harry Dayton was a widower until a few weeks ago, when he married a Jersey widow. His children had been living in Auburn, and he naturally brought them to this city upon his marriage. The morning after his son's arrival in the course of conversation Harry used the word "conscience."

"What's conscience?" asked the little fellow.

The fond parent assumed a knowing look and replied slowly, with great feeling: "Conscience, my boy? Why, that's a gift from God which tells us when we do anything wrong."

"Hum," commented the little fellow thoughtfully, "we don't have that in Auburn."—New York World.

MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE.

Italy in the last 12 years has had 2,573,000 marriages and 6,690 divorces. All marriages in England must be celebrated before 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

In Colorado a wife was granted a decree because her husband cut off her bangs.

Heliogabalus divorced one of his wives because she had a mole on her shoulder.

A decree was granted in Massachusetts because "the defendant keeps this plaintiff awake most of the night quarreling."

The marriages with the deceased wife's sister or husband's brother numbered in France in 1885 355 per 100,000 marriages.

Statistics of most countries seem to show that consanguineous marriages increase the number of insane, deaf, dumb and blind children.

The meaneast reason ever given by a man for marrying was assigned by an Englishman 40 years ago. He married because he wanted somebody to part his hair straight.

Divorce in France is regulated by law on the theory that a wife is her husband's equal. She does not promise to obey. She retains her own property and may dispose of it by will.

In Illinois a decree was obtained by a long suffering husband because "during the past year the defendant struck this plaintiff repeatedly with pokers, flat irons and other hard substances."

A Kansas wife was released from her husband because, as she stated in her petition, "the defendant pinched the nose of this plaintiff, causing it to become very red, thereby causing the plaintiff great pain and anguish of mind."

Among the Saxons, a wife was divorced by sale. A husband, with the consent of the wife, put a halter around her neck, led her to the nearest market town and disposed of her at auction to the highest bidder, making a speech in which he set forth her good and evil qualities.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Every Clubwoman Wants an Office.

Mr. Sarcus (reading the prospectus of the Ladies' Mental Improvement club, to which his wife belongs)—Twenty vice presidents. Why, you've only got a total membership of 23!

Mrs. Sarcus—Yes. But you see there weren't enough of the other offices to go around.—Chicago Record.

An Innocent Kid.

Mother—Come, Willie, and say your prayers.
Willie—I guess I hadn't better tonight. Mother—Why, what do you mean?

Willie—Well, since papa said he wouldn't give me a bicycle, I haven't felt in the proper frame of mind.—Detroit Free Press.

At the Top.

Waggy—Has your son been successful since he left college?
Baggy—I should say so. He has just signed a contract to pitch this season with a League baseball team.—Brooklyn Eagle.
